BOVEY NAME

NOTES ON THE BOVEY FAMILY.

This was a widespread family in South Devon. In the 18th century they ranged in the parishes between Dartmouth and Bovey Tracey, and various "Bovey's" were involved in the Newfoundland trade from at least 1670 onwards. 4 Bovey's settled in Newfoundland. Lawrence Bovey (of Bovey Tracey) settled by 1774 and died in 1813. He was a cooper and does not seem to have been married. He lived in St. John's. JOHN Bovey of Dartington in Devonshire was a congregationalist and a Joiner. Born in 1798, died St. John's in 1876. His father was a husbandman in Dartington who married (1786) in Dartington and died in 1814 aged 57. JOHN may well have been married in England before he came to Newfoundland since he had at least one son (John, Jr. born 1830) and had had another son before that. He was in St. John's by 1833.

The third "Bovey" to settle in Newfoundland was SAMUEL of Abbotskerswell in Devon who married Thomasin Martin, a widow of Torbay, in 1782. He seems to have returned to England for he married as a widower Elizabeth Sweetland in Abbotskerswell in 1806. However, another SAMUEL of Applepen in Devonshire (although he might also be one SAMUEL BOVEY born son of John and Jane of Abbotskerswell in 1777), married at St. John's in 1821 Susan, second daughter of the late Doctor John Rennells (who came from Dartmouth in Devonshire).

Thus your Bovey ancestor presumably descends from either John, the Joiner, or Samuel of Applepen/Abbotskerswell. I would suspect John, the Joiner, but this would require further investigation.

NOTES ON THE AIDE (EADE) FAMILY.

This is a very rare family name which only occurs once in my name files for the whole of Newfoundland/English/Irish history over 300 years. The country and place of origin is not yet certain. The name "EADY" is a Devonshire one, whilst the name "ADEY" is a Dorset one. However, I do not think that the names are related. My only AIDE (EADE) at the moment is one MICHAEL who lived at first in MOSQUITO, Conception Bay. He was there by 1814, but in the 1820's came to St. John's to work as a coasting ship captain for the firm of Eppes and Cormack. He commanded Sealing schooners, the "SEVEN SISTERS" in 1827, and the "MORNING STAR" in 1831 and 1832. He then disappears from our records. He might well have been the father of your ancestor. I suspect, mainly because of the Christian name (Michael) and the fact that the name never appears in West of England sources, that they were Irish.
